我學過一些兒童心理學，當時就感覺這些小孩子一定出自相當幸福的家庭，所以才會對陌生人如此友善，破碎家庭的小孩子多半對人不太信任，絕對不會叫陌生人替他們撿球的。

既然他們對我如此友善，我就一不做二不休，問他們住在那裡。孩子們一致請我同他們一起回家。我一路跟著他們，這才發現我倒霉了，因為其中最小的一個還要我背。

I learned some child psychology. At that time, I thought that these children certainly come from quite happy families, so they are so friendly to strangers. Most of the children come from fragmentation families don't trust people and would never ask strangers to pick the ball for them.

Since they were so friendly to me, in for a penny, I asked them where they lived. The children unanimously invited me to go home with them. I followed them all the way; at this time, I found out that I was unlucky because the youngest of them needed me to carry him on my back.
