Miss Bingley was not so entirely satisfied with this reply as to continue the subject. Elizabeth joined them again only to say that her sister was worse, and that she could not leave her. Bingley urged Mr. Jones being sent for immediately; while his sisters, convinced that no country physician's advice could be of any service, recommended an express to town for one of the most eminent physicians. Elizabeth was not so unwilling to comply with their brother's proposal; and it was settled that Mr. Jones should be sent for early in the morning, if Miss Bennet were not decidedly better. Miss Bingley could find no better relief to his feelings than by giving his housekeeper directions that every attention might be paid to the sick lady and her sister.
