South Korean military said that North Korea has launched two unidentified missiles. This was its fourth missile launch in less than two weeks. They launched from South Hwanghae province (黃海南道) across the peninsula into the sea to the east, a statement said. The United States indicated that it was monitoring the situation and conducting consultations with South Korea and Japan. North Korea expressed anger at the US-South Korean military exercises that began on Monday. Although the main drills will begin on August 11, low-key preparations have begun. North Korea has previously said that the exercise violates the agreement signed with President Donald Trump and South Korean President Moon Jae-in(文在寅). North Korea described the exercise as “an undisguised denial and blatant violation of the recent talks between the United States and North Korea.”
